Atlanta Constitution. HILLABEE, TALLADEGA Co., ALA.— Dear Cousin: The men folks has read out'n the paper about them harry-canes and ei-clomes a raidin' thu' the country not leavin' so much as a ash-hopper or chicken-coop in ther track; and it's got the women folks about here skeered so bad they can't do no work. They geth-ers in gangs at one another's houses and talks about the jedgment day and the world a comin' to a cend, and some of em is skeered all but into fits putty nigh Right smart sprinkle of 'em has dug 'em holes to run in when they hear them harry-canes a comin'. Pap and buddy has dug one under the shedroom for we'uns, and all we've got to do is to histe a plank and slide in. Flurridy Tennysy rits in ever time she sees a cloud a risin Maw she believes in makin' use of everthing, so she turned in and sot her last bar'l of saff soap down thar. That was while Flurridy was at Aunt Nancy's and in a handful of salt, and pour in the rewhen she come home here tother night time that big wind riz jist about dark she was skeered so bad she riz the plant and slid right down spang kerdab in that bar'l of lye soap, and fetched a yell you'd a thought the jedgment day had come, or the si-clome had struck her. Cap Dewberry was a settin' up a courten' me in tother house, and me and him flew in thar like the house was a fire, and Maw she was a tryin' to pull Flurridy out and droppin' her back, and yellin' for Pap, and here come Pap and buddy and betwixt 'em all they got her out, and of all the sights ever you seed she was the outdaciousest lookin'. Maw she fussed and rarred turrible about losin' all that saff soap, and Flurridy she had as hard a time a gittin' shet of the soap as Tom Davis did the 'lasses off'in his The rain riz the creek smack up into old Miss Strong's house that night, and she thought it was the flood and that her time had come, and she sot in to prayin' loud and callin' on the Lord and old man Noey to fetch his ark; and she prayed and shouted so loud they hearn her spang to Miss Loftiscs and Jake he taken the canoe and paddled up thar and tuck her out. He lowed she was a prayin' loud as she could holler and a fessin' up her sins in a hurry. 'Oh, Lord, jist let me live to git my foot once't more on dry ground and I lay I'll sarve you all my life, and I lay I never sarves the devil no more, and I never sells no more settin' sigs while I live, and I lay I'll allers hereatter gin good measure on ever pint of saff soap and sorghum 'lasses I sells, and I lay, if I don't drown and this here haint the jedgment day, I lay I'll try to sarve the Lord and shame the devil from this day out." I don't know as Jake was a lyin' or no, but he lowed she was monstrous skeered, and atter all that prayin' and shoutin' that quick as deard to say anything agin it—skeered God-a-Mighty mought send some kind of a cusa on her. She thinks it rained jist bekase she hung up a snake. "Hit wasn't nothin' but a little bitty old chicken snake," says she, "but I be bound I never hangs up nairy nother n."

Last Friday me and Flurridy set in to warp a piece of cloth. Friday is as lucky as airy other day. Miss Freshours stept in and looked skeered. "Laws, Betsy." Thursday if it haint but a stitch or two.' I was tickled to death kase everybody knows old Miss Freshours don't kill herself startin' work no day. She is as idle-some and do-less one day as tother, and cept Sunday, and don't git much rest then," for I thought about how she allers come and fetched a gang er chillun to spend the day. "Well," says she, "I've allers hearn 'em say it was a onlucky day, and I has enough bad luck th'out startin work on Friday, and I know in reason I'd have a power more if it wasn't for my horse-shoo over my door, and my rabbit's foot in my pocket; and when I sees a rabbit run acreas the road I allers turns my pocket inside out'ards, and he allers turns his hat upside down'ards; and shore as I fergits and has to go back atter southland. I makes a creas mark and spits. my pocket inside out'ards, and he allers turns his hat upside down'ards; and shore as I fergits and has to go back atter anything, I makes a cross mark and spits in it; and I know monstrous we'l these here blood beads has kep my nose from bleedin', and this here brass ring on my middle finger has kep down the rheumatiz. A Superior Whitewash.

A friend furnishes us this recipe from the New York Journal of Commerce:
PORT HARRELSON, S. C., April, 22, 1884.—Editor of the Journal merce: We are informed that the Government uses a very superior kind of wash for whitewashing light-houses and other public buildings of this character. Will you kindly inform us of what ingredients this whitewash is composed, node of mixing together, how applied,

SUBSCRIBERS. Reply.-Take two quarts of unslacked lime, five gallons of warm or hot water, some glue and fine salt. Put the lime in a vessel and add one gallon of warm water, and when this water is nearly absorbed, if for inside work, throw it the boiling lime a piece of glue about 14 inches square, and continue to add water so as to keep the lime boiling, but do not let it get dry and lumpy, neither let it get so drowned with water as to stop boiling it. When the lime has been broken to pieces by boiling do not stir it, water will get under the bottom of it. When it has ceased boiling, which will mainder of the water slowly, and be sure to stir it in at the same time. If for wood-work and the first coat (outside) it should have a little more glue and be put on thick, but the second coat will readily bear the addition of another gallon of water. Brick or stone work requires the first application to be made thinner, or with six gallons of water, so that it will take hold of porous substances. The subsequent application should be of a thickersubstance. Apply the above with an ordinary whitewash brush, the hairs f which have been thoroughly wetted (in order to swell them and prevent their drying) before they are introduced in the limewash. The above is our recipe, and if Uncle Samuel has anything better we are not aware of it

An Inevitable Anecdote.

During his recent able speech in the Senate on the school bill, Senater Vance, of North Carolina, indulged in much leasantry, some of which was very good. None can relate an ancedote like he, and he could not resist the temptation to perpetrate a couple of his inimitable jokes, even in the presence of dign fied and sedate Senators. Illustrating the point that the North, especially New England, and more particularly Masachusetts, was originally responsible for slavery, Senator Vance said:

"If I may be permitted to disturb the dignified solemnity of this body for one moment, I will state of what it reminds me. I heard once of an old maid who got religion at a camp meeting. Imme-diately after she experienced the change she commenced exhorting the younger and prettier women in regard to wearing jewelry and gew-gaws, and warned them against the pernicious consequences to piety of such vauities. 'Oh, girls!' she said, 'I tell you, I used to wear car rings he landed her on the ground she ketched her breath fast, and said: "Darn the rain: like you do, but I found they were drag-I wouldn't er been skeered so bad for all I'm wuth," and right then I know in reason a hamper basket would er belt them 20 my younger sister Sally. Some of 'em grumbles powerful about the rain. Old Miss Green lows she's ateard to say anything agin it—skeered is the way she preserved her whiteness of soul."

Friendly Spiders.

Spiders have often been celebrated, both in history and folk lore, and many a prisoner has beguiled the weary hours of his captivity by making a pet of a spider. The Mahommedans venerate the spider on account of the legend that says she, "ef you haint a startin' a piece of work and this a Friday. It's turrible bad luck, it's a sign you'll die 'fore it's wore out. I allers begins mine of a like service to King David, when hiding ing to a rabbinical tradition, a spider did a like service to King David, when hidling from the pursuit of Saul, by spinning her web across the mouth of the caye in which he was biding, and Saul, thinking no one could be within, passed on. A some and co-less one day as tother, and raily does more a Sunday than airy day in the week. "Yes," says I, "I knowed it was a Friday but it reads in the book some'rs 'Six days was made to work and Sunday to rest,' and I don't keep no day cept Sunday, and don't git much rest then." for I thength shouthers there is no could tell them where Felix then was (a question he did not similar fact is related in the Acta Saucte

BLECKLEY: BROWN & FRETWELL.

Healthy People Sometimes Laugh

At the sufferings of dyspeptics, and say that their pains and distresses are imaginary. This is not meant for cruelty, but it is cruelty, all the same. A person who has a crooked foot, or a wounded hand, or a sightless eye, calls forth sympathy by the exhibition of the defective member. If the dyspeptics sufferer's stomach could be placed on exhibition, the cause of his distress would be apparent.

The man with a troublesome stomach often suffers quite as much as the man with a broken leg, but is far less likely to receive sympathy.

Sympathy is good for sufferers, as far as it goes. But Brown's Iron Bitters is better, for it strikes at the root of these troubles, and cures disease. Disappointed dyspeptics, weary of having tried many experiments in seeking cure, will do well to make one fair trial of Brown's Iron Bitters, and report the result. That this well-tried family medicine will thus diminish the quantity of human suffering is an established fact.
